PRESIDENT REFUSES TO GIVE
BLISS LETTER TO THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, August 11—The President replied today to the Senate resolution requiring him to submit to the Senate certain information and correspondence concerning the settlement of the Shantung affair at the peace conference. The president transmitted a great deal of official correspondence and records but flatly refused to send to the senate the original or a copy of the letter Admiral Bliss wrote to him in which a report was made of the view of the American peace delegation regarding Shantung. Secretary Lansing had previously told the Senate that such a letter had been written to the president but that the Shantung matter was not settled according to the American delegate's advice.

Wilson informed the senate that he had no knowledge of any negotiations looking to a secret pact between Germany and Japan. He also said he had no knowledge of any effort on the part of Japanese delegates to intimidate the Chinese envoys.

In a letter to Senator Lodge the President refused the committee's request for stenographic records, arguments and data of the peace conference on the grounds that no stenographic record was kept and that it was agreed that the discussion was to be confidential. The letter to Lodge was separate from the letter to the Senate.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT BILL

WASHINGTON, August 11—With many of its drastic features moderated, the House Prohibition Enforcement bill was reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee today. The first moderation was to prevent over zealous enforcement of that part of the bill making it a misdemeanor to allow the use of property to carry on the liquor traffic. The phrasing was changed to require knowledge of the intended use. Near beers received a new lease of life with the revised bill although they must not contain more than one half of one per cent. alcohol and must not be labeled as beer, ale or porter.

FARMERS PREPARE TO FIGHT BELIEF
THAT WHEAT GUARANTEE IS BASIC
CAUSE OF INCREASED FOOD COSTS

WASHINGTON, August 11—Consideration of the President's recommendations will be taken up this week by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. Appointment of the special committee will be the first step of congress in accordance with the message delivered on Friday.

A delegation of farmers representatives ready to establish offices for the purpose of convincing the public that the government price set on wheat is not the basic cause of increasing values has arrived in Washington from the wheat belt. Senator Gronna, chairman of the Agricultural committee is preparing a statement on behalf of the farmers. Meanwhile repeal of the $2.25 wheat guarantee is before the House and Senate Agricultural committee.

THOUSANDS OF SHOPMEN STRIKERS
STILL ON STRIKE IN NEW ENGLAND

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 11—From fifteen to twenty-five thousand striking shopmen returned to work this morning according to reports gathered from the railroad centers. Reports show that practically all workers west of the Mississippi are back at work, all in the south except at Atlanta but almost all of New England is still out.

HUNS WILL GET OLD POST

WASHINGTON, August 11—President Wilson today sent to the Senate the nomination of Edward L. Humes, of Pittsburgh, for United States District Attorney of the Western District.

TWO STOREROOMS
AND MOVIE HOUSE
IN WINDSOR HOTEL

Fred J. Thompson, who expects to take possession of the Hotel Windsor property September 1st, arrived home from Harrisburg Saturday morning, where he had been in consultation with the Factory Inspector's department relative to plans for a movie theatre he contemplates establishing at the Windsor.

In conversation with The Progress man this morning Mr. Thompson informed us that his plans provide for two store rooms with a 16 foot frontage on Market street and extending back 50 feet, with the use of a 10-foot annex or stock room in the rear.

In addition to the store rooms a 10-foot entrance will lead from Market street to a compact little movie theatre in the rear which will have a seating capacity of 700. An Altoona architect has made a tentative plan of the theatre and first floor arrangement of the old hotel building and this theatre plan was submitted to the Harrisburg authorities for inspection and report before final completion of same.

Representatives of the Greek-American company who were in Clearfield Saturday are dealing with Mr. Thompson for one of the Market street rooms, it being their intention to install a six-chair barber shop in same.

STOCKS OPEN STRONG
NEW YORK, Aug. 11—The entire list showed strength at the opening of the stock market today. U. S. S. opened at 105½, up ¼. Beth. B. 88½, up 1½. Baldwin 109, up 1½. Mex. Pet. 177½, up 1½.

"FAIR PRICE" LIST
NEXT MOVE TO GET
LIVING COST DOWN

HARRISBURG, PA., Aug. 11—Goy L. Smith, head of the newly organized Bureau of Markets which operates under the State Department of Agriculture, announced today that the bureau stood ready to co-operate with the Food Administration in the work of establishing "fair price" lists in Pennsylvania. While not directly concerned with prices, the bureau could give valuable information on the subject because of its investigation along this line.

WASHINGTON, August 11—Food administrators in every state will begin today the formation of "fair price committees" in response to a request directed to them by Attorney General Palmer. His telegram to the food administrators with this request marks another step in the fight against the high cost of living, and is in accordance with the desire of the President.

Once fair prices are arrived at and posted by the administrators, all of the strength of the department of Justice will be used to maintain observance of these prices. Any violations of the fair price list will be reported immediately to the nearest U. S. district attorney and he will be vested with authority to proceed at once against the profiteers.

Meantime investigators of the department of justice have reported that large quantities of food stuffs have been stored, and U. S. district attorneys are investigating these accumulations of supplies to determine whether prosecution should be begun in accordance with Attorney General Palmer's instructions.

The general instructions issued to the U. S. district attorneys and co-operating departments also cover a destruction of foodstuffs, a purpose by this method to hold up prices to the present high level. Reports are being received that foodstuffs are thus being destroyed and the full machinery of the law will be invoked to reach the guilty. In this connection it has been proposed that Congress will pass legislation, especially designed to cope with profiteers who go so far as to destroy foodstuffs.

Representatives of farmers' organizations in 24 wheat states are to attend a conference in Washington today for the purpose of discussing the high cost of living.

According to John E. Brown, president of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' association, the farmers are anxious to participate in solving the country's price problem. The farmers expect to present their side of the question to the President and to stay in Washington until the question is in a fair way to be settled.

Opposition to President Wilson's recommendation that legislation be enacted to require that producers' prices be stamped upon food products, which developed yesterday, has gained considerable strength in the House.

SENATORS RESENT
WILSON SHIFTING
RESPONSIBILITY

WASHINGTON, August 11—With regard to party, it is widely felt in Senate and House that the President and Director General Himes of the railroad administration are trying to "pass the buck" to Congress on the railroad wage and rate question.

Senator Cummins, chairman of the Senate interstate commerce committee, in a speech said the President and the railroad administration have full power to deal with the demand for increased wages of railroad employees. He added, however, that any recommendations of the President would be given careful consideration by the committee.

Senator Pomerene, Democrat, was more blunt about it. He said it looked as though there was an attempt to pass the responsibility to Congress.

"I am not the director general of railroads," said Senator Pomerene, "but if I were I would have the courage to say there ought or there ought not to be an increase in railroad wages or I would resign."

Senator Lenroot took the view the President not only had full power to act in this situation but that it is his duty to act.

Since the railroads of the country were put in charge of the Railroad administration wages have been twice raised and rates have been repeatedly raised. The railroad control act is still on the statute books. Under the circumstances the members of Congress point out that they do not entirely understand why the President should now be seeking to have Congress enact further legislation.

MICKIE SAYS

ANDREW CARNEGIE
MASSACHUSETTS

BULLETIN, LENOX, Massachusetts, August 11—Andrew Carnegie died this morning shortly after seven o'clock at his summer home. Bronchial pneumonia is ascribed as the cause of his death. He had been in failing health for a number of months.

Andrew Carnegie, probably best known to Americans through the numerous libraries and other institutions he built or aided throughout the United States, was born at Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, November 5, 1835. He came to America with his family in 1848, settling in Pittsburgh.

Carnegie entered the industrial world as a weaver's assistant in a cotton factory in Allegheny, Pa., when a very young boy. He became a telegraph messenger boy at Pittsburgh in 1851.

Learning telegraphy, he became an operator, and was rapidly promoted to management of the Pittsburgh division of the Ohio Telegraph Co. Then he went into the manufacture of sleeping cars with T. T. Woodruff, inventor. He saved his earnings and invested them wisely in oil lands.

Successfully he was superintendent of railways and telegraph lines in the East for the government during the civil war, head of several iron works after the war, head of the Carnegie Steel Co., and one of the moving geniuses of the big merger that produced the United States Steel corporation.

The steel king retired from business in 1901, announcing that it was a disgrace for a man to die rich and that he proposed to devote the rest of his life to giving away his fortune. He immediately began building libraries throughout the world. Within the next 15 years he scattered his gift libraries so thickly about the United States that scarcely a town in the whole country was left without at least one Carnegie library and many cities had from two to a dozen. He gave $5,100,000 to New York City alone, for establishment of branch libraries.

Libraries constituted but one branch of the ironmaster's multifarious gift-distributing program. He gave millions to foundations, pension funds, hero funds, the Hague peace tribunal and innumerable other benevolent enterprises.

Early in life Mr. Carnegie announced his belief that it was a sin to die rich and set about to dispose of his fortune but his income was so great that with all his gifts he was unable to distribute his wealth. His benefactions are listed at no less than three hundred millions of dollars. The beginning of the world war was a shock to him as it shattered his ideals of a peaceful world and rendered useless his monument to peace which he built at The Hague.

E. W. KELLEY OF DUBOIS
AND DR. KALBFUS DIE

AUTOMOBILE IN WHICH THEY WERE RIDING
STRUCK BY FAST TRAIN NEAR
WARREN YESTERDAY.

ON TOUR OF GAME PRESERVES

E. W. Kelly, of DuBois, field superintendent for the game commission of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Jos. Kalbfus, chief game protector, were both killed when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a P. & W. train at a point between Sheffield and Warren. Dr. Kalbfus was killed instantly. Mr. Kelly lived for a few minutes but died without saying anything other than to murmur the name of Dr. Kalbfus, apparently wanting to know his fate.

The two were members of a party of game commissioners who have been making an inspection of the game preserves of the state. Dr. Kalbfus, in company with Dr. C. B. Penrose, of Philadelphia, and John M. Phillips, of Pittsburgh, two of the game commissioners, came to DuBois Saturday evening and made arrangements with Mr. Kelly for starting out on Sunday morning for Warren. The three commissioners came in their own car and stopped all night at the Logan house. Yesterday morning they were joined by Mr. Kelly, who drove his own car. When the party left the Logan house about 8:15 o'clock Dr. Penrose and Mr. Phillips were in one car, for which they had a driver. Dr. Kalbfus and Mr. Kelly were in the second car, the DuBois man driving.

It was about 12:15 o'clock when a fast running express train passed around a curve at the second crossing past Sheffield, catching the car driven by Mr. Kelly and carrying it a distance of 800 feet before it was stopped. Dr. Kalbfus was on the side away from the engine and was thrown out of the car, being instantly killed. Mr. Kelly was apparently pinned between the automobile and the engine and was badly crushed. Both legs were broken, the left arm was broken and the left hand torn. As soon as the train was stopped the crew and people attracted to the spot by the crash removed the debris of the automobile, which was smashed into kindling wood and scattered the body of Mr. Kelly. It was carried to the porch of a nearby residence and medical attention secured. It was seen that nothing could be done except ease the pain. As stated Mr. Kelly recovered consciousness for a few minutes, but was unable to recognize anyone, a DuBois man who was coming in this direction reaching the injured man's side within five minutes after he was carried to the porch. Mr. Kelly knew this man well but no sign of recognition was given.

The bodies of both men were removed to Warren where they were prepared for burial. Dr. Penrose and Mr. Phillips had apparently taken the lead shortly after leaving DuBois, as their car was some distance ahead at the time of the accident.

The scene of yesterday's fatal accident is described as a particularly dangerous place and is said to be the same crossing at which a Mitchell car was smashed a few weeks ago. The train run around a curve just before striking the crossing and the engineer does not have much chance to see if the way is clear, while the view of the automobilists is also obstructed. The train that struck the automobile was an express, made up of a baggage car, one coach and the caboose. An eye witness who saw the train a minute or two before it crashed into the crossing stated that it was running at a high rate of speed. The eye-witness stated that he was traveling about 45 miles per hour and the train went past him easily. The engineer of the train seemed to be all broken up over the accident. He stated that he never saw the automobile until the pilot of the engine was almost touching it. The impact of the collision was so terrific that the pilot of the engine was bent back under.

Dr. Penrose and Mr. Phillips made arrangements to have the two bodies removed to Warren and then telephoned George Sloppy, telling him of the accident and requesting him to notify the family. This was done and it certainly proved a great relief to them as well as to the entire neighborhood. Mr. Kelly had left a few hours before in the best of health and spirits and to have the news of his death in such a sudden manner was a terrible blow. N. R. Moore and E. M. Timlin left yesterday afternoon to bring back the remains.

Mr. Kelly was a man well known throughout this section of the country, especially of late years. He has been connected with the game department of the state for many years and has traveled extensively throughout this portion of the commonwealth. He was regarded as a man fearless in the execution of his duty and one who would not tolerate any infringement of the game laws.

Previous to taking up the game law work Mr. Kelly was engaged in lumbering and for several years was in charge of the Hicks Run operation. He was also a noted trap shooter and took an active part in all of the game laws in Western Pennsylvania. Elias Woodward Kelly was born in Elumville, Indiana, county, and came to this section early in life with his father. He is survived by his wife and the following sons and daughters: William Elmer, Mrs. Walter Cook, Mrs. Arthur Coleman, Freda, Vivian and Ralph. His mother, Mrs. L. M. Kelly, of Curwensville, also survives as do the following brothers and sisters: Edward, Samuel and John, of Curwensville, and Mrs. Irvin Leach, of Warren, O.

Dr. Kalbfus, who was 67 years old, had perhaps the most diversified history of any of the state officials. He spent the greater part of his youth on the western plains. There he was known as an Indian fighter and was engaged for several years in the pursuit of buffaloes. It was during this period that the love for conserving game, which he strongly avowed, was formed.

Later, returning to Pennsylvania, he studied law, and later forsook a general department to study dentistry. He started to practice in Harrisburg, but abandoned it when the game department was organized.

BASEBALL GAME THURSDAY
EVENING

The baseball game Thursday afternoon between Phillipsburg's crack team and Jimmy DeHart's Western Pennsylvania stars representing Clearfield will be called at 6 o'clock which will give everybody the opportunity of witnessing the game and will also allow the full nine inning game before dark.

These two teams are the best semi-pro teams to be found in this section and some classy baseball may be expected. There is a great deal of rivalry between the players and the money consideration for which they are playing adds additional interest to the proceedings. Clearfield's position does not have much chance to see if the way is clear, while the view of the automobilists is also obstructed.

The train that struck the automobile was an express, made up of a baggage car, one coach and the caboose. An eye witness who saw the train a minute or two before it crashed into the crossing stated that it was running at a high rate of speed. The eye-witness stated that he was traveling about 45 miles per hour and the train went past him easily. The engineer of the train seemed to be all broken up over the accident. He stated that he never saw the automobile until the pilot of the engine was almost touching it. The impact of the collision was so terrific that the pilot of the engine was bent back under.

Dr. Penrose and Mr. Phillips made arrangements to have the two bodies removed to Warren and then telephoned George Sloppy, telling him of the accident and requesting him to notify the family. This was done and it certainly proved a great relief to them as well as to the entire neighborhood. Mr. Kelly had left a few hours before in the best of health and spirits and to have the news of his death in such a sudden manner was a terrible blow. N. R. Moore and E. M. Timlin left yesterday afternoon to bring back the remains.

Many thousands of dollars of Red Cross money are available for use in Clearfield county and there is considerable discussion over the disposition of the fund. It will be a wise thing indeed to hold and conserve the greater part of this money for community emergencies but at the same time it would seem that a part of the money could well be used to improve conditions in our county along the line of public health.

Concerning public health nurses the Literary Digest recently published the following interesting article:

Public health nursing which promises to become one of the great social forces of reconstruction in the future, was first organized in the large cities, notably New York, Chicago, Providence, and Boston, perhaps forty years ago. Smaller towns, and especially rural communities, however, have not shared in this development, and the Red Cross Department of Nursing is now particularly desirous of placing public health nurses in these localities.

The public health nurse, with her general and post-graduate training, is now recognized as the most efficient instrument for promoting a high order of community health. Her duties are of the most direct and practical form of social service. Striking at the root of epidemics by teaching prevention of the spread of contagion, she organizes classes of women who study the first principles of household sanitation, home nursing and home dietetics.

A neighborhood nurse also inspects school children, separating the sick from the well and discovering faults of development such as defective eyesight, "bad tonsils", and "fallen arches." That such inspection is also greatly needed is evident by the six hundred thousand men rejected in the recent army draft for preventable physical disqualifications. She gives instructions to expectant mothers so that the yearly death rate of fifteen thousand women from childbirth alone may be reduced and the child be given more than a possible five chances out of seven to live. She is also the constant enemy of tuberculosis and other communicable diseases.

The Red Cross hopes to offer instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick to every woman and girl in the United States. In urban communities, Red Cross Teaching Centers have already been established, where the course is offered to factory operatives, girl scouts, nursemaids, "little mothers" and other specialized groups as well as to women who wish certificates for completion of the standardized course.

In working out this programme, perhaps the greatest obstacle which confronts the Red Cross is the lack of available public health nursing personnel. At the beginning of the war there were approximately six thousand public health nurses in the United States. Some of these, however, have since entered military service. The Red Cross has therefore appropriated one hundred thousand dollars in Public Health scholarship funds, with an additional five thousand dollars loan fund to prepare nurses for public health work, and hopes to interest many of the twenty thousand nurses now being released in large numbers from the Army and Navy Nurse Corps to take post-graduate training for public health nursing. As an initial effort to launch this educational programme, the Department of Nursing is assigning Red Cross nurses on the various Chautauqua Circuits covering the length and breadth of the country during the summer of 1919—veterans of the great base hospitals behind the lines of Chateau Thierry and the Argonne who shall become "wandering troubadours of health."

Today's Political Review

Five weeks tomorrow the political parties of Clearfield county will gather at the polls to select their candidates for the various county offices. Never in the history of Clearfield county politics has there been such a mild campaign as this year for the nomination. Candidates are numerous but few of them have been able to excite much comment and the average voter is on the fence waiting for developments to point the way in which he will cast his vote. There are, however, many influences at work which will make the primary warm and speedy before four more weeks roll around.

Like the old story of the blind kittens, the people of Centre county are waking up. The people of Clearfield county beat them to it several years ago.

Publication of the recent registration in Centre county, showing the Democratic party hopelessly behind, has effectively disposed of several prospective Democratic candidates, losing their hats into the ring. Indications are that for the first time in history the Democrats will enter the primaries without at least one candidate for every place on the ticket. This is a Republican year.—Belleville Republican.

William H. Keller, for years first Deputy Attorney General, will be the only candidate at the fall elections for Superior Court Judge.

The last day for filing nomination petitions has passed and no other candidate appeared to contest the place. The office is one of the highest in the state and Mr. Keller's friends say the decision of other lawyers not to get into the race is a compliment to him. Mr. Keller is a resident of Lancaster where for many years he has been a leading member of the bar.

Only two judicial districts of those to elect this fall will escape contests, while in the Warren district there is no aspirant for the place of Associate Judge. No new petitions were filed in the last day.

Judgeship candidates have been notified to appear at the State Department next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock to draw for positions on the primary ballot, under a recently-passed law requiring that when there are contests the candidates must cast lots or the order in which their names are to appear on the ticket. The old law required the names to appear in alphabetical order.

U. S. Marshall John Short is the

accredited administration leader for this congressional district. Shortly after the last presidential election he espoused the "cause" of the leaders and took the reins in hand. His first move to build up a Democratic machine was his appointment of Ira McCloskey, a popular young Democrat, as his deputy. To date, however, there are no signs that Ira's many friends are disposed to ride on the same political band wagon.

The appointment of Frank E. Costello of Bradford as Supervisor of the census for the four counties is a fly in the ointment of party harmony in this county where two or three old wheel horses of the party expected the "timothy". But the Marshall knew what he was doing. The appointment of Costello means that Short will name the many enumerators for Clearfield county and thru the county-wide gifts of these plums Short hopes to build up an army of "faithfuls". The apathy existing in Democratic circles gives the Marshall an opportunity to further gain control of his party by putting a county ticket in the field. Whether he does this or not will be a development of the near future.

PRIMARY ELECTION SEPTEMBER 16TH

The last day for filing nominating petitions with the County Commissioners in order to get names of candidates on the ticket is August 15th. Thus far but few petitions have been filed. Why this apathy among the voters?

Clearfield has an exceptionally large number of local offices to be filled and as yet no party has called a local nominating caucus.

The following important borough offices are to be filled:

Justice of the Peace, to succeed F. G. Chorprenning.

Two School Directors to succeed S. E. McLaren and L. R. McDowell.
High Constable to succeed W. L. Holmes.

Ward Officers

Six members of Council as follows: First Ward one to succeed Dr. John W. Gordon.

Second Ward.—Two to succeed A. E. Leitzinger and Roll B. Thompson.
Third Ward.—Two to succeed Ashley Thorn and E. J. Walther.

Fourth Ward.—One to succeed L. F. Hopper.

An Assessor for each ward.
A constable for each ward and election officers in each ward.

Few Folks Have Gray Hair Now

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of men and women who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair, after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

MAKING TEETH GOOD SERVANTS.

Between the doctors and the dentists the teeth of the people appear to be having a hard time of it. This is a layman's conclusion drawn from what members of the two professions had to say to and against one another at a meeting in Chicago. The dentists indicted the doctors for making too many erroneous diagnoses of the ills of the flesh in which the teeth were held to be the chief inciters of trouble, says Minneapolis Tribune. The doctors said the dentists were too ready with their forceps in yanking out molars, cuspids, bicusps and incisors, and the dentists retorted that they acted for the most part on orders brought to them by patients from doctors. On one thing both professions unite—that good, sound teeth are a vitally important part of the human anatomy. They put it up to the owner and operator of teeth to take good care of his masticators, and they hold out the promise to him that if he will do that much for himself he will spare himself much discomfort, save money and time, and carry a very good line of insurance of his general health.

A good many people have felt that wireless telegraphy is the greatest of all the wonders of modern invention and scientific discovery. They do not, of course, fully understand the transmission of messages by telegraph or of the voice by telephone, because no one, not even scientists, understands electricity; but at least there is a material connection between the sender and the receiver of the communication and wire seems to explain something of the mystery to the normal mind, whether it really does or not. It is at all events something tangible to cling to. But messages that are sent out into space and go wandering over the earth to be picked out of the air by any chance operator of a wireless instrument who may catch and interpret it, or even, in these latest days, draw a spoken message out of the ether—these things have an uncanny suggestiveness, as of something occult, says Indianapolis Star. They hint at telepathy, for if thoughts may be propelled by electricity, through the atmosphere for thousands of miles, why not transmission of wireless messages by the battery of mind?

We can see the line along which war must eventually disappear, even without any active human interference. Its two causes are already decaying. The excessive birth rate is falling, and necessarily falls with every rise in culture. Excessive individualism has likewise passed its climax; there is no more world left to fight for; and with the regulation of industrial and commercial activities, of the whole material side of life, the economic cause of war falls away and the energy thus released is free for sublimation into other and possibly more exalted forms of human activity.

Experience and tests of the great war have proved the American pistol of .45 caliber to be the most effective small weapon in the world, according to an exhaustive report to the army authorities. This is approved the verdict of our pioneers of the plains and frontiers. The old-fashioned "forty-five" played a large part in civilizing the West and Southwest and bringing culture and sweetness and light to benighted would-be autocrats of the wild.

Convict work on highways is legal, henceforth. Prisoners may work in the open air, and keep their health, regardless of the sensibilities of philanthropists who hate to look on them. Incidentally the deterrence of the punishment will be markedly increased.

Maybe in a few years, with food prices continuing their upward flight, we shall be able to exist without eating, the change coming about much after the fashion of our evolution from a monkey to the shrewd mechanism that we now think we are.

Kansas grocers are employing returned soldiers because they keep the store cleaner than other employees. Practice in barracks is said to be responsible for this wholly desirable habit contracted in the army.

A government training school will give expert instruction in rifle and small-arms practice to students from all parts of the United States. This is a new variation of teaching the young idea how to shoot.

The new schedule puts a 100-per cent tax on dirks, daggers, stiletos and brass knuckles. But some purse-proud persons will continue to indulge in such luxuries, nevertheless.

MARGUERITE CLARK IN
"The Amazons"

Do you know who the Amazons are? No? Then we'll explain: The Amazons are the three daughters of Lady Castlejordan, who raises her girls as boys. And MARGUERITE CLARK is Lord Tommy, the liveliest one of the three. Sort of unusual, eh? "Unusual" is the word—can you imagine the daintiest star on the screen getting in a row with a tough while attending a gay music hall, then knocking him over the box rail. No indeed—so there is a surprise awaiting you tonight when you witness Paramount's version of SIR ARTHUR WING PINERO'S romantic farce.

ANITA STEWART IN

"Mary Regan"

The girl's mother possessed wealth and social position. But she loved a notorious crook, and married him, hoping to effect his reformation. The husband proved unfaithful, and the mother of Mary Regan died of a broken heart. The girl, Mary, inherits her mother's fortune and character—and when she realizes into a beautiful woman she grows, she belongs to neither the social nor the underworld, but occupies a position between the two. Out of this girl's novel situation the skillful LOIS WEBER has weaved a photodrama of big scenes, big business and big climaxes, with ANITA STEWART as the girl. This is the third of Miss Stewart's own productions, and those of you who were fortunate enough to see "Virtuous Wives" and "A Midnight Romance" will surely anticipate this picture with great eagerness.

YOUR FACE MADE OVER

Oh Beauty Does since you can now conspire,
To grasp some sorry face or two entire,
How do you shatter, skin a bit and then
Remold it nearer to the heart's desire.

BY MARGARET RHOE
(Written for The United Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Really it's getting to be quite the thing to have one's face done over every season or so—quite like one has the house or the limousine refinished and redecorated, don't you know? Only when it comes to face values, it certainly takes a bit of doing.

If Charles V or Philip II of Spain could only peep in on one of our up-to-date beauty parlors in full operation, they'd blush for very shame over the puerile and feeble accomplishments of their erstwhile inquisitorial torture chambers. Skinning 'em alive was one of their particular pet pastimes. Nowadays, however, fragile females suffer a skinning as a mere incident in their frenzied seeking for pulchritude. They turn one cheek and then the other to prove that beauty is only skin deep. With the aid of a skilled beauty expert, several assistants, some acid and a bit of slow agony, they shed a weather-beaten epidermis for peaches and cream new babeskin and call it a well spent day. If you are contemplating a skinning, however, it were well to count on more than a union day. A few hours will see you skinned all right, but you will still have to do a bit of time and a bit of suffering in the privacy of your boudoir before your face is quite itself in its brand new cuticle.

Then there's the fatal double chin, the dreaded crows-foot and all the other ills that beauty's heir too. If you don't object to a snip here and a slash there and a bit of plain and fancy sewing, these can all be put quite out of countenance. Some of our best known movie idols and idol-ettes have had gussets and gores and tucks and French seams taken in their physiognomies, till there isn't even a poor little elusive laugh wrinkle left among the lot.

As yet this facial surgery and wrinkle removing science is in its infancy, but among the theatrical profession it has undoubtedly proved a great success. With the perfection that time and experience and experiments always add, it will soon become as common a thing to have your face done over as to have your crooked teeth straightened up into plumb.

A bit of butchery changed the map of Europe and now a bit of butchery will do the same for Milady's map. All the wonders of the surgeons performed during the war on the unfortunate jaw and face victims of the Hun atrocities will now be turned to the account of the welling female victims, eager to suffer in the cause of pulchritude. This new method of cutting and lifting the skin and drawing it up over the temples and forehead to eliminate wrinkles and puffs about the eyes, the elliptical incisions and sutures and such like to abolish a superfluity of chins certainly has it all over that recently exploited method of filling up the hollows with liquid paraffine. At the hard finish, a sort of a lump jaw effect was the ofttest result obtained.

Though our old friends Charlie V and Phil II would undoubtedly feel quite at home among the fendish paraphernalia attendant upon the process of turning perfectly good straight hair into the crooked path of the curly, the permanent wave process is really not as bad as it looks or smells. So greatly has it been perfected since its first invention that now it is as simple and painless as a manicure. Sometimes of course you do get a bit "het" up in the scalp and feel as if some love locks were being plucked out by the roots, but on the other hand and off-times both some of our best little manicures gouge out corners and go to bloody lengths on the cuticle, so there you are.

To be sure, it takes a lot of cash and a lot of fortitude, but if you don't weaken you can week-end at a beauty parlor these days, going in a plain Jane and emerging a perfect Mary Pickford.

With so much beauty right ready just for the paying and the pains, you can't help thinking that the years to come will be so cloyed and surfeited with just one beauty after another that an ordinary au naturel girl with stand out refreshingly amidst so much pulchritude, like an oasis in the Sahara. Just as a gamble, I think I'll leave my little old last year's face alone and see.

St. Nick's Partners All Getting Busy

(By United Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Only 144 more days before Christmas.

So the toy makers, the candy manufacturers, the fiction writers and illustrators, and all others in partnership with Santa Claus, are wrking at top speed to get their wares ready for the holiday season.

The toy factories, humming with industry, are turning out the most varied assortment of amusement devices in their history—but anything of a martial nature is banned. The manufacturers are proceeding on the theory that youngsters, as well as their elders, are tired of war.

Santa Claus' newest partner appears to be Japan. Dealers said today that country will run a close second to the United States in turning out toys. The question of whether Germany and the quest of resume diplomatic relations appears to be an open one. Most dealers, however, declare their opposition to admitting German toys at this time.

In common with everything else, toys will cost considerably more than last year—about twice as much as before the war.

With the ban off sugar, candy makers are confident there will be a record demand for their products this Christmas, and are making preparations accordingly.

Magazine editors are accepting and rejecting—mostly rejecting—Christmas stories and pictures. Printers are increasing their stocks of Christmas cards.

Poultry dealers refused to commit themselves as to how much the Christmas turkey will cost but frankly admitted they can see no chance of a decrease from last year's record price.

Out on the wooded hills, the evergreens are utilizing these hot days to add enough to their height and spread to qualify as Christmas trees.

Everywhere in the United States the Christmas spirit though still hidden beneath half a calendar, is lusty and growing.

Beach Clothes Grow Captivating

Such numbers of new and beautiful things for beach wear have made their appearance along with hot weather, that bathers make a panorama of the sands more interesting than ever. There are many vagaries in suits and wraps that bloom like gorgeous and unfamiliar flowers on the edge of the sea, and some of them are evidently intended to be looked at and not to be wet. Among these are mantles of silk in gay colors and Japanese designs, and beach costumes of silk that one can hardly think were ever intended to withstand the boisterous waves or salt water; but they are charming to look at.

These attractive beach clothes, however, have no monopoly of good looks. The regular bathing and swimming togs worn this season are altogether the most attractive that have been presented within the memory of the oldest fashion writer. Very successful ones are made of the very best fiber fabrics in knitted weaves, and in the usual wooleens, as well as in taffeta and other silks. The silk fiber fabrics have a sheen that water fails to dim and that adds a great deal to the effectiveness of the brilliant combinations in which they are made.

ROBERTS ACCEPTS
CHALLENGE OF
MORT HENDERSON

Promotor Katzman, manager of Leslie Roberts, announces that he has thrown his "kady" into the ring for Henderson to pick up and that Henderson, who is more familiarly known as the "Masked Marvel," forthwith picked up the aforesaid "kady" and a wrestling bout that will bring delight to the fans will be staged in the Expo Building at the Clearfield Driving Park on Labor Day.

Followers of the mat game have seen Roberts in action. It will be remembered that Roberts has been highly touted as the champion of the Philippine Islands and the entire Northwest as well. On the Fourth he went to the mat with Sailor Gordon of Punxsutawney and there was nothing to it but Roberts all the way. Roberts showed so much class that Clearfield wrestling fans were more than enthusiastic over his performance.

Mort Henderson, who at one time made his home in Altoona, is a wrestler of national reputation, having met and defeated some of the most renowned mat artists that the country has produced. Roller, Zybisko, Gotch and other stars have felt the prowess of Henderson's mighty grip.

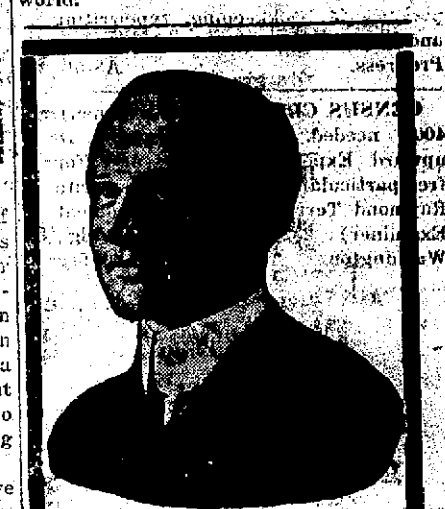

Promotor Katzman has arranged to have the Expo Building made over into a real arena for the bout. Seats will be built in tiers and afford every possible advantage of a clear view of the grapplers.

COULDN'T HIT BRIDGE
ENTRANCE

The country went dry July 1st, but you can't make the people living down about the corner of Second and Bridge streets believe she's altogether "bone dry" in these parts. A lady residing down in that section called us up this morning to tell us of a fellow who came down that way last night "loaded to the gills."

The highest point in the town is at the entrance to the Second street bridge and the consequent grade was too much for the traveler who essayed the rise three times before he finally made it. Even then it required the combined aid of a couple of passing good Samaritans to make the operation a success, as the weary traveler's sights were so twisted that he failed to hit the bridge entrance on three separate "runs-up," and backing was some job for him, too.

RATTLESNAKES TRAVEL IN PAIRS

H. E. Selfridge, keeper of Kennedy Park Game Reserve, was a Clearfield visitor Saturday, having come to town from his mountain home for the purpose of meeting local people desiring to make application for scalp bonnets. In talking with The Progress man Ed said he found rattlesnakes plentier this year than for several seasons back. He killed two big ones in the yard at the keeper's cottage on the old Smith place Thursday and Friday. Thursday evening just before dark he heard a commotion among his chickens by the back porch and investigating found a three-foot rattler attempting to make a meal on chicken. The reptile, which measure just three feet, was quickly dispatched and yielded a string of eight bells.

Old woodsmen will tell you that rattlers always travel in pairs and when you kill one his mate will always come around hunting him very shortly. This proved to be so in this instance, because Friday morning when the Game Warden came out of his house after breakfast he discovered another rattler within one hundred feet of where the first one was killed the evening before.

The snake was hunting trouble and on Mr. Selfridge's approach she never attempted to get out of the way but sounding her rattles defiantly immediately coiled up in battle line. A shot from the keeper's revolver ended hostilities by snipping the head off the varmint, which measured three and one-half feet and sported thirteen "bells."

BASEBALL

N. Y. C. WINS GAME

The N. Y. C. team won from the Y team Friday evening in an interesting game by the score of 4 to 2. Errors by the Y team in the early innings gave the N. Y. C. team four runs and this was enough to win the game. The "Y" got two runs in the fifth on Nolan's two base hit, Hower's hit to right for a base, and H. Roseberry's bunt down the third base line. Hower was caught off third here but Roseberry scored on Bailey's single.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

By L. J. LAFORTE

Speaking of hunting stories reminds us of one that occurred here some forty odd years ago. The hero was a lad named Schoky; a family consisting of four boys lived on the John Patton farm near this town and worked the fields on the shares. The eldest of the boys was named Abraham and he had the reputation of being a successful hunter, and a crack shot with a rifle. Matthew, a brother considerably younger than Abraham, was renowned as an acrobat and was possessed of a peculiar character. One nice day in the month of August the two brothers took a day off and went to the mountains for a deer hunt. After tramping the woods all day they were not successful in "raising" a single deer and started on the long tramp homeward disgusted with the time lost and nothing to show for it, and by the time they reached town, it was growing quite dusk. Reaching a point nearly opposite the old Benny Bloom farm, tired and weary, a large four-pronged buck jumped from a thicket of laurel. Abraham, who carried the gun, and was considered a first-class shot with a rifle, saw the animal jump up and ready for instant flight, he quickly raised his gun to his shoulder and fired, the bullet striking the buck just behind one of its fore legs. The animal dropped at the crack of the gun, seemingly dead. Matt wanted to share some of the glory, as well as his brother, and jumped astride the animal's back and grasped Mr. Buck by the horns, commencing to crow like a rooster, evidently to notify his brother to have no fear of the deer as he was on the job and would see that the deer was dead. The sudden weight of Matt's alighting on the deer's back brought the supposed dead deer back to life and struggling to his feet started on the dead run down through scrub timber and brush, and according to the steam gauge was traveling at the rate of at least forty miles an hour, no doubt being afraid he would not reach some designation on time or the heavy timber on the other side of the creek. Matt had no chance whatever of getting free from the animal unless he took a fifty-fifty chance of knocking his brains out or becoming a cripple for the remainder of his life, so he hung to the horns, praying that the animal would either break his neck or let him dismount decorously. His buckskin made the water crossing in excellent time, congratulating himself, no doubt, that he was now comparatively safe from injury as he had outdistanced his pursuers several miles in the main.

Not far from where the buck had calculated to make his crossing point, several men were hunting for snipe and other small game, and upon seeing the deer and rider coming over the hill in a direct line where they were, could not figure out what it was, but concluded to hide behind a large rock and await developments. One of the men had a double-barrelled shot gun with him and when the deer and its human burden came close to his hiding place so that he distinguished a man on the back of the deer, he was astounded and hesitated about shooting at the deer for fear of hitting the human freight the animal was carrying so much against his will. Both barrels of the gun he carried were loaded with large shot and leaded slugs. Finally he took a chance and fired both barrels, some of the charge finding lodgment in vital parts of the buck, killing it instantly.

When the man who did the shooting reached his prize he was dumfounded to discover a comparatively young man apparently dead and lying under the body of his dead deer, and to discover that it was Matt Schoky, whom he had known ever since the lad's advent into this world. He called his two companions to come up where he was and assist him to remove the carcass of the dead animal from the body of Schoky in order that he might be revived, if possible. There was apparently no life in Matt's body, but to make sure that Matt was not done for entirely they threw water all over his anatomy and tried other means than the water revivist. Matt was not just ready to go by the water route at this particular time and being an agile boy, raised up in these mountains, soon came around. The first question he asked his deliverers was to ascertain "whether the devil had broken loose or whether he had just fallen over a precipice". Matt's perilous ride, through brush and scrub timber, left him in about the same condition for clothing that Adam found himself when first entering the Garden of Eden. He admitted, however, that the deer was as lenient with him as possible and picked out the thinnest part of the route. He came out of the melee wearing one suspender and one half of a pantaloons leg. His body was cut and bruised considerably and it took one whole bed sheet for bandages to cover up most of the cuts, great and small. He told the writer a few days after his Paul Revere ride that he would never forget his ride on the back of that old four pronger.

Miss Bernice LaBord has returned home after attending the summer session at State College.

Many Cases of Rheumatism Now

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning or a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subjected to rheumatism.

In most of the cities of Chile women are employed as street-car conductors.

PRESIDENT REFUSES TO GIVE
BLISS LETTER TO THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, August 11—The President replied today to the Senate resolution requiring him to submit to the Senate certain information and correspondence concerning the settlement of the Shantung affair at the peace conference. The president transmitted a great deal of official correspondence and records but flatly refused to send to the senate the original or a copy of the letter Admiral Bliss wrote to him in which a report was made of the view of the American peace delegation regarding Shantung. Secretary Lansing had previously told the Senate that such a letter had been written to the president but that the Shantung matter was not settled according to the American delegate's advice.

Wilson informed the senate that he had no knowledge of any negotiations looking to a secret pact between Germany and Japan. He also said he had no knowledge of any effort on the part of Japanese delegates to intimidate the Chinese envoys.

In a letter to Senator Lodge the President refused the committee's request for stenographic records, arguments and data of the peace conference on the grounds that no stenographic record was kept and that it was agreed that the discussion was to be confidential. The letter to Lodge was separate from the letter to the Senate.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT BILL

WASHINGTON, August 11—With many of its drastic features moderated, the House Prohibition Enforcement bill was reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee today. The first moderation was to prevent over zealous enforcement of that part of the bill making it a misdemeanor to allow the use of property to carry on the liquor traffic. The phrasing was changed to require knowledge of the intended use. Near beers received a new lease of life with the revised bill although they must not contain more than one half of one per cent. alcohol and must not be labeled as beer, ale or porter.

FARMERS PREPARE TO FIGHT BELIEF
THAT WHEAT GUARANTEE IS BASIC
CAUSE OF INCREASED FOOD COSTS

WASHINGTON, August 11—Consideration of the President's recommendations will be taken up this week by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. Appointment of the special committee will be the first step of congress in accordance with the message delivered on Friday.

A delegation of farmers representatives ready to establish offices for the purpose of convincing the public that the government price set on wheat is not the basic cause of increasing values has arrived in Washington from the wheat belt. Senator Gronna, chairman of the Agricultural committee is preparing a statement on behalf of the farmers. Meanwhile repeal of the $2.25 wheat guarantee is before the House and Senate Agricultural committee.

THOUSANDS OF SHOPMEN STRIKERS
STILL ON STRIKE IN NEW ENGLAND

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 11—From fifteen to twenty-five thousand striking shopmen returned to work this morning according to reports gathered from the railroad centers. Reports show that practically all workers west of the Mississippi are back at work, all in the south except at Atlanta but almost all of New England is still out.

HUNS WILL GET OLD POST

WASHINGTON, August 11—President Wilson today sent to the Senate the nomination of Edward L. Humes, of Pittsburgh, for United States District Attorney of the Western District.

TWO STOREROOMS
AND MOVIE HOUSE
IN WINDSOR HOTEL

Fred J. Thompson, who expects to take possession of the Hotel Windsor property September 1st, arrived home from Harrisburg Saturday morning, where he had been in consultation with the Factory Inspector's department relative to plans for a movie theatre he contemplates establishing at the Windsor.

In conversation with The Progress man this morning Mr. Thompson informed us that his plans provide for two store rooms with a 16 foot frontage on Market street and extending back 50 feet, with the use of a 10-foot annex or stock room in the rear.

In addition to the store rooms a 10-foot entrance will lead from Market street to a compact little movie theatre in the rear which will have a seating capacity of 700. An Altoona architect has made a tentative plan of the theatre and first floor arrangement of the old hotel building and this theatre plan was submitted to the Harrisburg authorities for inspection and report before final completion of same.

Representatives of the Greek-American company who were in Clearfield Saturday are dealing with Mr. Thompson for one of the Market street rooms, it being their intention to install a six-chair barber shop in same.

"FAIR PRICE" LIST
NEXT MOVE TO GET
LIVING COST DOWN

HARRISBURG, PA., Aug. 11—Goy L. Smith, head of the newly organized Bureau of Markets which operates under the State Department of Agriculture, announced today that the bureau stood ready to co-operate with the Food Administration in the work of establishing "fair price" lists in Pennsylvania. While not directly concerned with prices, the bureau could give valuable information on the subject because of its investigation along this line.

WASHINGTON, August 11—Food administrators in every state will begin today the formation of "fair price committees" in response to a request directed to them by Attorney General Palmer. His telegram to the food administrators with this request marks another step in the fight against the high cost of living, and is in accordance with the desire of the President.

Once fair prices are arrived at and posted by the administrators, all of the strength of the department of Justice will be used to maintain observance of these prices. Any violations of the fair price list will be reported immediately to the nearest U. S. district attorney and he will be vested with authority to proceed at once against the profiteers.

Meantime investigators of the department of justice have reported that large quantities of food stuffs have been stored, and U. S. district attorneys are investigating these accumulations of supplies to determine whether prosecution should be begun in accordance with Attorney General Palmer's instructions.

The general instructions issued to the U. S. district attorneys and co-operating departments also cover a destruction of foodstuffs, a purpose by this method to hold up prices to the present high level. Reports are being received that foodstuffs are thus being destroyed and the full machinery of the law will be invoked to reach the guilty. In this connection it has been proposed that Congress will pass legislation, especially designed to cope with profiteers who go so far as to destroy foodstuffs.

Representatives of farmers' organizations in 24 wheat states are to attend a conference in Washington today for the purpose of discussing the high cost of living.

According to John E. Brown, president of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' association, the farmers are anxious to participate in solving the country's price problem. The farmers expect to present their side of the question to the President and to stay in Washington until the question is in a fair way to be settled.

Opposition to President Wilson's recommendation that legislation be enacted to require that producers' prices be stamped upon food products, which developed yesterday, has gained considerable strength in the House.

SENATORS RESENT

WASHINGTON, August 11—With regard to party, it is widely felt in Senate and House that the President and Director General Himes of the railroad administration are trying to "pass the buck" to Congress on the railroad wage and rate question.

Senator Cummins, chairman of the Senate interstate commerce committee, in a speech said the President and the railroad administration have full power to deal with the demand for increased wages of railroad employees. He added, however, that any recommendations of the President would be given careful consideration by the committee.

Senator Pomerene, Democrat, was more blunt about it. He said it looked as though there was an attempt to pass the responsibility to Congress.

"I am not the director general of railroads," said Senator Pomerene, "but if I were I would have the courage to say there ought or there ought not to be an increase in railroad wages or I would resign."

Senator Lenroot took the view the President not only had full power to act in this situation but that it is his duty to act.

Since the railroads of the country were put in charge of the Railroad administration wages have been twice raised and rates have been repeatedly raised. The railroad control act is still on the statute books. Under the circumstances the members of Congress point out that they do not entirely understand why the President should now be seeking to have Congress enact further legislation.

ANDREW CARNEGIE
DIES AT LENOX
MASSACHUSETTS

BULLETIN, LENOX, Massachusetts, August 11—Andrew Carnegie died this morning shortly after seven o'clock at his summer home. Bronchial pneumonia is ascribed as the cause of his death. He had been in failing health for a number of months.

Andrew Carnegie, probably best known to Americans through the numerous libraries and other institutions he built or aided throughout the United States, was born at Dunfermline Fifeshire, Scotland, November 5, 1835. He came to America with his family in 1848, settling in Pittsburgh.

Carnegie entered the industrial world as a weaver's assistant in a cotton factory in Allegheny, Pa., when a very young boy. He became a telegraph messenger boy at Pittsburgh in 1851.

Learning telegraphy, he became an operator, and was rapidly promoted to management of the Pittsburgh division of the Ohio Telegraph Co. Then he went into the manufacture of sleeping cars with T. T. Woodruff, inventor. He saved his earnings and invested them wisely in oil lands.

Successfully he was superintendent of railways and telegraph lines in the East for the government during the civil war, head of several iron works after the war, head of the Carnegie Steel Co., and one of the moving geniuses of the big merger that produced the United States Steel corporation.

The steel king retired from business in 1901, announcing that it was a disgrace for a man to die rich and that he proposed to devote the rest of his life to giving away his fortune. He immediately began building libraries throughout the world. Within the next 15 years he scattered his gift libraries so thickly about the United States that scarcely a town in the whole country was left without at least one Carnegie library and many cities had from two to a dozen. He gave $5,100,000 to New York City alone, for establishment of branch libraries.

Libraries constituted but one branch of the ironmaster's multifarious gift-distributing program. He gave millions to foundations, pension funds, hero funds, the Hague peace tribunal and innumerable other benevolent enterprises.

Early in life Mr. Carnegie announced his belief that it was a sin to die rich and set about to dispose of his fortune but his income was so great that with all his gifts he was unable to distribute his wealth. His benefactions are listed at no less than three hundred millions of dollars. The beginning of the world war was a shock to him as it shattered his ideals of a peaceful world and rendered useless his monument to peace which he built at The Hague.

Miss Mary Guzman left yesterday to visit her sister in Philadelphia.

E. W. KELLEY OF DUBOIS
AND DR. KALBFUS DIE

AUTOMOBILE IN WHICH THEY WERE RIDING
STRUCK BY FAST TRAIN NEAR
WARREN YESTERDAY.

ON TOUR OF GAME PRESERVES

E. W. Kelly, of DuBois, field superintendent for the game commission of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Jos. Kalbfus, chief game protector, were both killed when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a P. & W. train at a point between Sheffield and Warren. Dr. Kalbfus was killed instantly. Mr. Kelly lived for a few minutes but died without saying anything other than to murmur the name of Dr. Kalbfus, apparently wanting to know his fate.

The two were members of a party of game commissioners who have been making an inspection of the game preserves of the state. Dr. Kalbfus, in company with Dr. C. B. Penrose, of Philadelphia, and John M. Phillips, of Pittsburgh, two of the game commissioners, came to DuBois Saturday evening and made arrangements with Mr. Kelly for starting out on Sunday morning for Warren. The three commissioners came in their own car and stopped all night at the Logan house. Yesterday morning they were joined by Mr. Kelly, who drove his own car. When the party left the Logan house about 8:15 o'clock Dr. Penrose and Mr. Phillips were in one car, for which they had a driver. Dr. Kalbfus and Mr. Kelly were in the second car, the DuBois man driving.

It was about 12:15 o'clock when a fast running express train passed around a curve at the second crossing past Sheffield, catching the car driven by Mr. Kelly and carrying it a distance of 800 feet before it was stopped. Dr. Kalbfus was on the side away from the engine and was thrown out of the car, being instantly killed. Mr. Kelly was apparently pinned between the automobile and the engine and was badly crushed. Both legs were broken, the left arm was broken and the left hand torn. As soon as the train was stopped the crew and people attracted to the spot by the crash removed the debris of the automobile, which was smashed into kindling wood and carried the body of Mr. Kelly. It was carried to the porch of a nearby residence and medical attention secured. It was seen that nothing could be done except ease the pain. As stated Mr. Kelly recovered consciousness for a few minutes, but was unable to recognize anyone, a DuBois man who was coming in this direction reaching the injured man's side within five minutes after he was carried to the porch. Mr. Kelly knew this man well but no sign of recognition was given.

The bodies of both men were removed to Warren where they were prepared for burial. Dr. Penrose and Mr. Phillips had apparently taken the lead shortly after leaving DuBois, as their car was some distance ahead at the time of the accident.

The scene of yesterday's fatal accident is described as a particularly dangerous place and is said to be the same crossing at which a Mitchell car was smashed a few weeks ago. The train run around a curve just before striking the crossing and the engineer does not have much chance to see if the way is clear, while the view of the automobilists is also obstructed. The train that struck the automobile was an express, made up of a baggage car, one coach and the caboose. An eye witness who saw the train a minute or two before it crashed into the crossing stated that it was running at a high rate of speed. The eye-witness stated that he was traveling about 45 miles per hour and the train went past him easily. The engineer of the train seemed to be all broken up over the accident. He stated that he never saw the automobile until the pilot of the engine was almost touching it. The impact of the collision was so terrific that the pilot of the engine was bent back under. Dr. Penrose and Mr. Phillips made arrangements to have the two bodies removed to Warren and then telephoned George Sloppy, telling him of the accident and requesting him to notify the family. This was done and it certainly proved a great shock to them as well as to the entire neighborhood. Mr. Kelly had left a few hours before in the best of health and spirits and to have the news of his death in such a sudden manner was a terrible blow. N. R. Moore and E. M. Timlin left yesterday afternoon to bring back the remains.

Mr. Kelly was a man well known throughout this section of the country, especially of late years. He has been connected with the game department of the state for many years and has traveled extensively throughout this portion of the commonwealth. He was regarded as a man fearless in the execution of his duty and one who would not tolerate any infringement of the game laws. Previous to taking up the game law work Mr. Kelly was engaged in lumbering and for several years was in charge of the Hicks Run operation. He was also a noted trap shooter and took an active part in all of the game laws in Western Pennsylvania. Elias Woodward Kelly was born in Elumville, Indiana, county, Pa., and came to this section early in life with his father. He is survived by his wife and the following sons and daughters: William Elmer, Mrs. Walter Cook, Mrs. Arthur Cook, Freda, Vivian and Ralph. His mother, Mrs. L. M. Kelly, of Curwensville, also survives as do the following brothers and sisters: Edward, Samuel and John, of Curwensville, and Mrs. Irvin Leach, of Warren, O.

Dr. Kalbfus, who was 67 years old, had perhaps the most diversified history of any of the state officials. He spent the greater part of his youth on the western plains. There he was known as an Indian fighter and was engaged for several years in the pursuit of buffaloes. It was during this period that the love for conserving game, which he strongly avowed, was formed. Later, returning to Pennsylvania, he studied law, and later forsook a general department to study dentistry. He started to practice in Harrisburg, but abandoned it when the game department was organized.

EVENING

The baseball game Thursday afternoon between Phillipsburg's crack team and Jimmy DeHart's Western Pennsylvania stars representing Clearfield will be called at 6 o'clock which will give everybody the opportunity of witnessing the game and will also allow the full nine inning game before dark.

These two teams are the best semi-pro teams to be found in this section and some classy baseball may be expected. There is a great deal of rivalry between the players and the money consideration for which they are playing adds additional interest to the proceedings. Clearfield's position does not have much chance to see if the way is clear, while the view of the automobilists is also obstructed.

The train that struck the automobile was an express, made up of a baggage car, one coach and the caboose. An eye witness who saw the train a minute or two before it crashed into the crossing stated that it was running at a high rate of speed. The eye-witness stated that he was traveling about 45 miles per hour and the train went past him easily. The engineer of the train seemed to be all broken up over the accident. He stated that he never saw the automobile until the pilot of the engine was almost touching it. The impact of the collision was so terrific that the pilot of the engine was bent back under.

Dr. Penrose and Mr. Phillips made arrangements to have the two bodies removed to Warren and then telephoned George Sloppy, telling him of the accident and requesting him to notify the family. This was done and it certainly proved a great shock to them as well as to the entire neighborhood. Mr. Kelly had left a few hours before in the best of health and spirits and to have the news of his death in such a sudden manner was a terrible blow. N. R. Moore and E. M. Many thousands of dollars of Red Cross money are available for use in Clearfield county and there is considerable discussion over the disposition of the fund. It will be a wise thing indeed to hold and conserve the greater part of this money for community emergencies but at the same time it would seem that a part of the money could well be used to improve conditions in our county along the line of public health.

Concerning public health nurses the Literary Digest recently published the following interesting article:

Public health nursing which promises to become one of the great social forces of reconstruction in the future, was first organized in the large cities, notably New York, Chicago, Providence, and Boston, perhaps forty years ago. Smaller towns, and especially rural communities, however, have not shared in this development, and the Red Cross Department of Nursing is now particularly desirous of placing public health nurses in these localities.

The public health nurse, with her general and post-graduate training, is now recognized as the most efficient instrument for promoting a high order of community health. Her duties are of the most direct and practical form of social service. Striking at the root of epidemics by teaching prevention of the spread of contagion, she organizes classes of women who study the first principles of household sanitation, home nursing and home dietetics.

A neighborhood nurse also inspects school children, separating the sick from the well and discovering faults of development such as defective eyesight, "bad tonsils", and "fallen arches." That such inspection is also greatly needed is evident by the six hundred thousand men rejected in the recent army draft for preventable physical disqualifications. She gives instructions to expectant mothers so that the yearly death rate of fifteen thousand women from childbirth alone may be reduced and the child be given more than a possible five chances out of seven to live. She is also the constant enemy of tuberculosis and other communicable diseases.

The Red Cross hopes to offer instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick to every woman and girl in the United States. In urban communities, Red Cross Teaching Centers have already been established, where the course is offered to factory operatives, girl scouts, nursemaids, "little mothers" and other specialized groups as well as to women who wish certificates for completion of the standardized course.

In working out this programme, perhaps the greatest obstacle which confronts the Red Cross is the lack of available public health nursing personnel. At the beginning of the war there were approximately six thousand public health nurses in the United States. Some of these, however, have since entered military service. The Red Cross has therefore appropriated one hundred thousand dollars in Public Health scholarship funds, with an additional five thousand dollars loan fund to prepare nurses for public health work, and hopes to interest many of the twenty thousand nurses now being released in large numbers from the Army and Navy Nurse Corps to take post-graduate training for public health nursing. As an initial effort to launch this educational programme, the Department of Nursing is assigning Red Cross nurses on the various Chautauqua circuits covering the length and breadth of the country during the summer of 1919—veterans of the great base hospitals behind the lines of Chateau Thierry and the Argonne who shall become "wandering troubadours of health."

Today's Political Review

Five weeks tomorrow the political parties of Clearfield county will gather at the polls to select their candidates for the various county offices. Never in the history of Clearfield county politics has there been such a mild campaign as this year for the nomination. Candidates are numerous but few of them have been able to excite much comment and the average voter is on the fence waiting for developments to point the way in which he will cast his vote. There are, however, many influences at work which will make the primary wax warm and speedy before four more weeks roll around.

Like the old story of the blind kittens, the people of Centre county are waking up. The people of Clearfield county beat them to it several years ago.

Publication of the recent registration in Centre county, showing the Democratic party hopelessly behind, has effectively disposed of several prospective Democratic candidates, losing their hats into the ring. Indications are that for the first time in history the Democrats will enter the primaries without at least one candidate for every place on the ticket. This is a Republican year.—Belleville Republican.

William H. Keller, for years first Deputy Attorney General, will be the only candidate at the fall elections for Superior Court Judge.

The last day for filing nomination petitions has passed and no other candidate appeared to contest the place. The office is one of the highest in the state and Mr. Keller's friends say the decision of other lawyers not to get into the race is a compliment to him. Mr. Keller is a resident of Lancaster where for many years he has been a leading member of the bar.

Only two judicial districts of those to elect this fall will escape contests, while in the Warren district there is no aspirant for the place of Associate Judge. No new petitions were filed in the last day.

Judgeship candidates have been notified to appear at the State Department next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock to draw for positions on the primary ballot, under a recently-passed law requiring that when there are contests the candidates must cast lots for the order in which their names are to appear on the ticket. The old law required the names to appear in alphabetical order.

U. S. Marshall John Short is the

accredited administration leader for this congressional district. Shortly after the last presidential election he espoused the "cause" of the leaders and took the reins in hand. His first move to build up a Democratic machine was his appointment of Ira McCloskey, a popular young Democrat, as his deputy. To date, however, there are no signs that Ira's many friends are disposed to ride on the same political band wagon.

The appointment of Frank E. Costello of Bradford as Supervisor of the census for the four counties is a fly in the ointment of party harmony in this county where two or three old wheel horses of the party expected the "timothy". But the Marshall knew what he was doing. The appointment of Costello means that Short will name the many enumerators for Clearfield county and thru the county-wide gifts of these plums Short hopes to build up an army of "faithfuls". The apathy existing in Democratic circles gives the Marshall an opportunity to further gain control of his party by putting a county ticket in the field. Whether he does this or not will be a development of the near future.

PRIMARY ELECTION SEPTEMBER 16TH

The last day for filing nominating petitions with the County Commissioners in order to get names of candidates on the ticket is August 15th. Thus far but few petitions have been filed. Why this apathy among the voters?

Clearfield has an exceptionally large number of local offices to be filled and as yet no party has called a local nominating caucus.

The following important borough offices are to be filled:

Few Folks Have Gray Hair Now

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of men and women who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair, after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

MAKING TEETH GOOD SERVANTS.

Between the doctors and the dentists the teeth of the people appear to be having a hard time of it. This is a layman's conclusion drawn from what members of the two professions had to say to and against one another at a meeting in Chicago. The dentists indicted the doctors for making too many erroneous diagnoses of the ills of the flesh in which the teeth were held to be the chief inciters of trouble, says Minneapolis Tribune. The doctors said the dentists were too ready with their forceps in yanking out molars, cuspids, bicusps and incisors, and the dentists retorted that they acted for the most part on orders brought to them by patients from doctors. On one thing both professions unite—that good, sound teeth are a vitally important part of the human anatomy. They put it up to the owner and operator of teeth to take good care of his masticators, and they hold out the promise to him that if he will do that much for himself he will spare himself much discomfort, save money and time, and carry a very good line of insurance of his general health.

A good many people have felt that wireless telegraphy is the greatest of all the wonders of modern invention and scientific discovery. They do not, of course, fully understand the transmission of messages by telegraph or of the voice by telephone, because no one, not even scientists, understands electricity; but at least there is a material connection between the sender and the receiver of the communication and wire seems to explain something of the mystery to the normal mind, whether it really does or not. It is at all events something tangible to cling to. But messages that are sent out into space and go wandering over the earth to be picked out of the air by any chance operator of a wireless instrument who may catch and interpret it, or even, in these latest days, draw a spoken message out of the ether—these things have an uncanny suggestiveness, as of something occult, says Indianapolis Star. They hint at telepathy, for if thoughts may be propelled by electricity, through the atmosphere for thousands of miles, why not transmission of wireless messages by the battery of mind?

We can see the line along which war must eventually disappear, even without any active human interference. Its two causes are already decaying. The excessive birth rate is falling, and necessarily falls with every rise in culture. Excessive individualism has likewise passed its climax; there is no more world left to fight for; and with the regulation of industrial and commercial activities, of the whole material side of life, the economic cause of war falls away and the energy thus released is free for sublimation into other and possibly more exalted forms of human activity.

Experience and tests of the great war have proved the American pistol of .45 caliber to be the most effective small weapon in the world, according to an exhaustive report to the army authorities. This is approved the verdict of our pioneers of the plains and frontiers. The old-fashioned "forty-five" played a large part in civilizing the West and Southwest and bringing culture and sweetness and light to benighted would-be autocrats of the wild.

Convict work on highways is legal, henceforth. Prisoners may work in the open air, and keep their health, regardless of the sensibilities of philanthropists who hate to look on them. Incidentally the deterrence of the punishment will be markedly increased.

No indeed—so there is a surprise awaiting you tonight when you witness Paramount's version of SIR ARTHUR WING PINERO'S romantic farce.

The girl's mother possessed wealth and social position. But she loved a notorious crook, and married him, hoping to effect his reformation. The husband proved unfaithful, and the mother of Mary Regan died of a broken heart. The girl, Mary, inherits her mother's fortune and character—and when she realizes into a beautiful woman she grows, she belongs to neither the social nor the underworld, but occupies a position between the two. Out of this girl's novel situation the skillful LOIS WEBER has weaved a photodrama of big scenes, big business and big climaxes, with ANITA STEWART as the girl. This is the third of Miss Stewart's own productions, and those of you who were fortunate enough to see "Virtuous Wives" and "A Midnight Romance" will surely anticipate this picture with great eagerness.

YOUR FACE MADE OVER

Oh Beauty Does since you can now conspire,
To grasp some sorry face or two entire,
How do you shatter, skin a bit and then
Remold it nearer to the heart's desire.

BY MARGARET RHOE
(Written for The United Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Really it's getting to be quite the thing to have one's face done over every season or so—quite like one has the house or the limousine refinished and redecorated, don't you know? Only when it comes to face values, it certainly takes a bit of doing.

If Charles V or Philip II of Spain could only peep in on one of our up-to-date beauty parlors in full operation, they'd blush for very shame over the puerile and feeble accomplishments of their erstwhile inquisitorial torture chambers. Skinning 'em alive was one of their particular pet pastimes. Nowadays, however, fragile females suffer a skinning as a mere incident in their frenzied seeking for pulchritude. They turn one cheek and then the other to prove that beauty is only skin deep. With the aid of a skilled beauty expert, several assistants, some acid and a bit of slow agony, they shed a weather-beaten epidermis for peaches and cream new babeskin and call it a well spent day. If you are contemplating a skinning, however, it were well to count on more than a union day. A few hours will see you skinned all right, but you will still have to do a bit of time and a bit of suffering in the privacy of your boudoir before your face is quite itself in its brand new cuticle.

Then there's the fatal double chin, the dreaded crows-foot and all the other ills that beauty's heir too. If you don't object to a snip here and a slash there and a bit of plain and fancy sewing, these can all be put quite out of countenance. Some of our best known movie idols and idol-ettes have had gussets and gores and tucks and French seams taken in their physiognomies, till there isn't even a poor little elusive laugh wrinkle left among the lot.

As yet this facial surgery and wrinkle removing science is in its infancy, but among the theatrical profession it has undoubtedly proved a great success. With the perfection that time and experience and experiments always add, it will soon become as common a thing to have your face done over as to have your crooked teeth straightened up into plumb.

A bit of butchery changed the map of Europe and now a bit of butchery will do the same for Milady's map. All the wonders of the surgeons performed during the war on the unfortunate jaw and face victims of the Hun atrocities will now be turned to the account of the welling female victims, eager to suffer in the cause of pulchritude. This new method of cutting and lifting the skin and drawing it up over the temples and forehead to eliminate wrinkles and puffs about the eyes, the elliptical incisions and sutures and such like to abolish a superfluity of chins certainly has it all over that recently exploited method of filling up the hollows with liquid paraffine. At the hard finish, a sort of a lump jaw effect was the ofttest result obtained.

Though our old friends Charlie V and Phil II would undoubtedly feel quite at home among the fendish paraphernalia attendant upon the process of turning perfectly good straight hair into the crooked path of the curly, the permanent wave process is really not as bad as it looks or smells. So greatly has it been perfected since its first invention that now it is as simple and painless as a manicure. Sometimes of course you do get a bit "het" up in the scalp and feel as if some love locks were being plucked out by the roots, but on the other hand and oftentimes both some of our best little manicures gouge out corners and go to bloody lengths on the cuticle, so there you are.

To be sure, it takes a lot of cash and a lot of fortitude, but if you don't weaken you can week-end at a beauty parlor these days, going in a plain Jane and emerging a perfect Mary Pickford.

With so much beauty right ready just for the paying and the pains, you can't help thinking that the years to come will be so cloyed and surfeited with just one beauty after another that an ordinary au naturel girl, stand out refreshingly amidst so much pulchritude, like an oasis in the Sahara. Just as a gamble, I think I'll leave my little old last year's face alone and see.

St. Nick's Partners All Getting Busy

(By United Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Only 144 more days before Christmas.

So the toy makers, the candy manufacturers, the fiction writers and illustrators, and all others in partnership with Santa Claus, are wrking at top speed to get their wares ready for the holiday season.

The toy factories, humming with industry, are turning out the most varied assortment of amusement devices in their history—but anything of a martial nature is banned. The manufacturers are proceeding on the theory that youngsters, as well as their elders, are tired of war.

Santa Claus' newest partner appears to be Japan. Dealers said today that country will run a close second to the United States in turning out toys. The question of whether diplomatic relations appears to be an open one. Most dealers, however, declare their opposition to admitting German toys at this time.

In common with everything else, toys will cost considerably more than last year—about twice as much as before the war.

With the ban off sugar, candy makers are confident there will be a record demand for their products this Christmas, and are making preparations accordingly.

Magazine editors are accepting and rejecting—mostly rejecting—Christmas stories and pictures. Printers are increasing their stocks of Christmas cards.

Poultry dealers refused to commit themselves as to how much the Christmas turkey will cost but frankly admitted they can see no chance of a decrease from last year's record price.

Out on the wooded hills, the evergreens are utilizing these hot days to add enough to their height and spread to qualify as Christmas trees.

Everywhere in the United States the Christmas spirit though still hidden beneath half a calendar, is lusty and growing.

TO THE VOTERS OF CLEARFIELD COUNTY: I wish to state that I am a candidate for re-election to the office of County Commissioner on the Democratic ticket.

Beach Clothes Grow Captivating

Such numbers of new and beautiful things for beach wear have made their appearance along with hot weather, that bathers make a panorama of the sands more interesting than ever. There are many vagaries in suits and wraps that bloom like gorgeous and unfamiliar flowers on the edge of the sea, and some of them are evidently intended to be looked at and not to be wet. Among these are mantles of silk in gay colors and Japanese designs, and beach costumes of silk that one can hardly think were ever intended to withstand the boisterous waves or salt water; but they are charming to look at.

These attractive beach clothes, however, have no monopoly of good looks. The regular bathing and swimming togs worn this season are altogether the most attractive that have been presented within the memory of the oldest fashion writer. Very successful ones are made of the very best fiber fabrics in knitted weaves, and in the usual wooleths, as well as in taffeta and other silks. The silk fiber fabrics have a sheen that water fails to dim and that adds a great deal to the effectiveness of the brilliant combinations in which they are made.

The suit shown in the picture is a good example of the silk fiber bathing suit, although it is not a swimming suit. Regular swimming suits have very short skirts and no undergarments. They dispense with buttons and in fact are built as to skirts and linings to weigh. This suit has buttons and dress at the neck and arms and is of gold at the neck and arms and of gold at the bottom of the skirt. The skirt is split up at the left side, revealing purple bloomers and has short strips of gold-colored fabric set in the split. The sash is in gold color also. The very ample cape is of rubberized cloth, with silks for the arms where a short flounce simulates a sleeve. Generally these suits have hose and shoes or slippers to match. The slippers are fastened with ribbons that wind about the ankles in the fashion of sandals. Like the shoes, they are of cloth, a sort of anteen usually and made to match the gown.

ROBERTS ACCEPTS CHALLENGE OF MORT HENDERSON

Promotor Katzman, manager of Leslie Roberts, announces that he has thrown his "kady" into the ring for Henderson to pick up and that Henderson, who is more familiarly known as the "Masked Marvel," forthwith picked up the aforesaid "kady" and a wrestling bout that will bring delight to the fans will be staged in the Expo Building at the Clearfield Driving Park on Labor Day.

Followers of the mat game have seen Roberts in action. It will be remembered that Roberts has been highly touted as the champion of the Philippine Islands and the entire Northwest as well. On the Fourth he went to the mat with Sailor Gordon of Punxsutawney and there was nothing to it but Roberts all the way. Roberts showed so much class that Clearfield wrestling fans were more than enthusiastic over his performance.

Mort Henderson, who at one time made his home in Altoona, is a wrestler of national reputation, having met and defeated some of the most renowned mat artists that the country has produced. Roller, Zybisko, Gotch and other stars have felt the prowess of Henderson's mighty grip.

Promotor Katzman has arranged to have the Expo Building made over into a real arena for the bout. Seats will be built in tiers and afford every possible advantage of a clear view of the grapplers.

COULDN'T HIT BRIDGE ENTRANCE

The country went dry July 1st, but you can't make the people living down about the corner of Second and Bridge streets believe she's altogether "bone dry" in these parts. A lady residing down in that section called us up this morning to tell us of a fellow who came down that way last night "loaded to the gills."

The highest point in the town is at the entrance to the Second street bridge and the consequent grade was too much for the traveler who essayed the rise three times before he finally made it. Even then it required the combined aid of a couple of passing good Samaritans to make the operation a success, as the weary traveler's sights were so twisted that he failed to hit the bridge entrance on three separate "runs-up," and backing was some job for him; too.

RATTLESNAKES TRAVEL IN PAIRS

H. E. Selfridge, keeper of Kennedy Park Game Reserve, was a Clearfield visitor Saturday, having come to town from his mountain home for the purpose of meeting local people desiring to make application for scalp bonnets.

In talking with The Progress man Ed said he found rattlesnakes plentier this year than for several seasons back. He killed two big ones in the yard at the keeper's cottage on the old Smith place Thursday and Friday. Thursday evening just before dark he heard a commotion among his chickens by the back porch and investigating found a three-foot rattler attempting to make a meal on chicken. The reptile, which measure just three feet, was quickly dispatched and yielded a string of eight bells.

Old woodsmen will tell you that rattlers always travel in pairs and when you kill one his mate will always come around hunting him very shortly. This proved to be so in this instance, because Friday morning when the Game Warden came out of his house after breakfast he discovered another rattler within one hundred feet of where the first one was killed the evening before.

The snake was hunting trouble and on Mr. Selfridge's approach she never attempted to get out of the way but sounding her rattles defiantly immediately coiled up in battle line. A shot from the keeper's revolver ended hostilities by snipping the head off the varmint, which measured three and one-half feet and sported thirteen "bells".

N. Y. C. WINS GAME

The N. Y. C. team won from the Y team Friday evening in an interesting game by the score of 4 to 2. Errors by the Y team in the early innings gave the N. Y. Hower was caught off third here but Roseberry scored on Bailey's single.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

By L. J. LAPORTE

Speaking of hunting stories reminds us of one that occurred here some forty odd years ago. The hero was a lad named Schoky; a family consisting of four boys lived on the John Patton farm near this town and worked the fields on the shares. The eldest of the boys was named Abraham and he had the reputation of being a successful hunter, and a crack shot with a rifle. Matthew, a brother considerably younger than Abraham, was renowned as an acrobat and was possessed of a peculiar character. One nice day in the month of August the two brothers took a day off and went to the mountains for a deer hunt. After tramping the woods all day they were not successful in "raising" a single deer and started on the long tramp homeward disgusted with the time lost and nothing to show for it, and by the time they reached town, it was growing quite dusk. Reaching a point nearly opposite the old Benny Bloom farm, tired and weary, a large four-pronged buck jumped from a thicket of laurel. Abraham, who carried the gun, and was considered a first-class shot with a rifle, saw the animal jump up and ready for instant flight, he quickly raised his gun to his shoulder and fired, the bullet striking the buck just behind one of its fore legs. The animal dropped at the crack of the gun, seemingly dead. Matt wanted to share some of the glory, as well as his brother, and jumped astride the animal's back and grasped Mr. Buck by the horns, commencing to crow like a rooster, evidently to notify his brother to have no fear of the deer as he was on the job and would see that the deer was dead. The sudden weight of Matt's alighting on the deer's back brought the supposed dead deer back to life and struggling to his feet started on the dead run down through scrub timber and brush, and according to the steam gauge was traveling at the rate of at least forty miles an hour, no doubt being afraid he would not reach some designation on time or the heavy timber on the other side of the creek. Matt had no chance whatever of getting free from the animal unless he took a fifty-fifty chance of knocking his brains out or becoming a cripple for the remainder of his life, so he hung to the horns, praying that the animal would either break his neck or let him dismount decorously. His buckskin made the water crossing in excellent time, congratulating himself, no doubt, that he was now comparatively safe from injury as he had outdistanced his pursuers several miles in the main.

Not far from where the buck had calculated to make his crossing point, several men were hunting for snipe and other small game, and upon seeing the deer and rider coming over the hill in a direct line where they were, could not figure out what it was, but concluded to hide behind a large rock and await developments. One of the men had a double-barrelled shot gun with him and when the deer and its human burden came close to his hiding place so that he distinguished a man on the back of the deer, he was astounded and hesitated about shooting at the deer for fear of hitting the human freight the animal was carrying so much against his will. Both barrels of the gun he carried were loaded with large shot and leaded slugs. Finally he took a chance and fired both barrels, some of the charge finding lodgment in vital parts of the buck, killing it instantly.

When the man who did the shooting reached his prize he was dumfounded to discover a comparatively young man apparently dead and lying under the body of his dead deer, and to discover that it was Matt Schoky, whom he had known ever since the lad's advent into this world. He called his two companions to come up where he was and assist him to remove the carcass of the dead animal from the body of Schoky in order that he might be revived, if possible. There was apparently no life in Matt's body, but to make sure that Matt was not done for entirely they threw water all over his anatomy and tried other means than the water revivist. Matt was not just ready to go by the water route at this particular time and being an agile boy, raised up in these mountains, soon came around. The first question he asked his deliverers was to ascertain "whether the devil had broken loose or whether he had just fallen over a precipice". Matt's perilous ride, through brush and scrub timber, left him in about the same condition for clothing that Adam found himself when first entering the Garden of Eden. He admitted, however, that the deer was as lenient with him as possible and picked out the thinnest part of the route. He came out of the melee wearing one suspender and one half of a pantaloons leg. His body was cut and bruised considerably and it took one whole bed sheet for bandages to cover up most of the cuts, great and small. He told the writer a few days after his Paul Revere ride that he would never forget his ride on the back of that old four pronger.

Miss Bernice LaBord has returned home after attending the summer session at State College.

Many Cases of Rheumatism Now

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to elimi-

ate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism. At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning or a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subjected to rheumatism.

In most of the cities of Chile women are employed as street-car conductors.
